

The letter to the Thessalonians educates and exhorts us. All believers want to be in a model church - but what would that look like? In this book, the author examines 1 Thessalonians to determine what constitutes a Model Church showing that it is not size or structure, not facilities or finances. Instead the Lord commends these believers for their character, conduct and conversation. Other characteristics of a church God commends are: a passion for the lost, a visible love for one another, and a walk that pleases God. The Thessalonians were a model for others in their day and for us today.
